"Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you."

Matthew 7:06.

James D. Gowing

With intelligent application of hard work one gets rewarded. The reward is MORE WORK! The more effective one becomes in his life's work, the more other people depend on him. As his career develops, his responsibilities to others increase. Therefore, the more significant his work becomes, through his own efforts, the greater are the demands made on him.

If the person is fortunate enough to get into something he really enjoys, all the "hard work" becomes exciting and enjoyable and his life more significant.

Gilbert E. Stokes

My philosophy of education is, in part, at least, expressed by these words of the American philosopher, William James: "An Education should give a man the feeling for a good human job anywhere, the admiration of the really admirable, the disesteem of what is cheap and trashy and impermanent."

Thomas H. Buffinton

"No apologies, no excuses."

this, it is not a bad idea.

Vaut mieux une tête bien faite qu'une tête bien pleine.

You should either be a good teacher or not teach, likewise, you should be a good student or not be at school.

If we could only take ourselves less seriously...

A lot of security comes from ignorance.

Cesar P. Dallini

I hope the students will see me as a friendly, intelligent person who believes in the usefulness of education, and who, above all, wants to be of some help. However, I would rather not attempt to sum up my "attitude towards life" for the Fore 'n' Aft. Such attempts usually seem forced and trite and are a private matter in any case.

Man is capable of understanding everything — how ether throbs, and what goes on in the sun — but he is quite incapable of understanding how another man can blow his nose in a different manner from the way he blows his own.

Keep trying — don't give up.

Richard Duff

Peter H. Falk

You've got to explode: in athletics, academics, the arts, and religion. The worst of all possible lives is the one spent in the rut of negative imagination. This is the realm of hell on earth; there are no alternatives. The inhabitants of this realm are totally unproductive beings, reeking of apathy and boredom. They do not possess a tenacious spirit; they know not creativity; they know not God. They are the living dead. Explode or you will be among them.

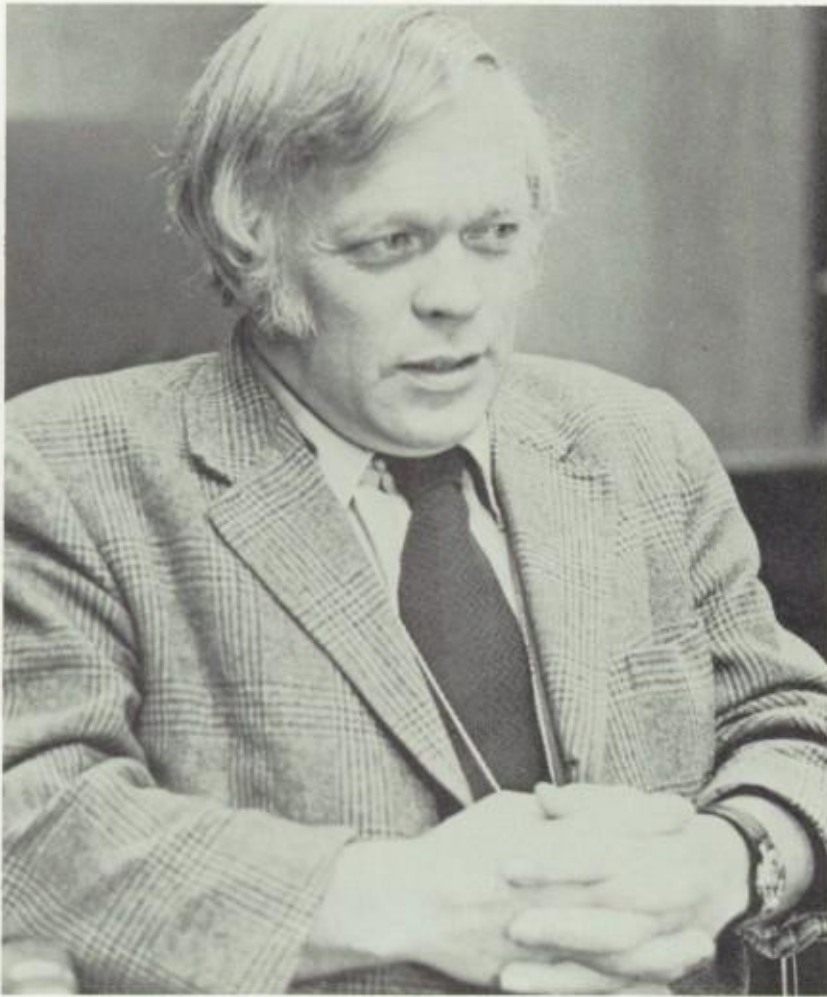

Teaching is what life is all about — from the instant of a man's conception — he is learning — what he learns depends upon his teacher. Experience is the best teacher, people make the second best teachers.

In my role as teacher, I try to synthesize my own experiences and impart them to my students in a way that will best relate to their lives in the hope that they in turn will pass on some small part of me.

Richard K. Jon

Life is an incredible, fantastic gift. I am grateful to the one who gives this gift, and to the many he gives to share in it.

David N. Graham

Life is a song, and one must sing along as best as one can.

Jack B. Grove

Since education is a companion which no enemy can alienate, no despotism subjugate, no misfortune depress, and no crime destroy, my life is dedicated to values which transcend the usual modes of recompense.

Richard A. Harlow, Jr.

Even on the gloomiest day, a ray of sunshine can be found — if one will only look for it.

Joanna A. Howe

To teach is to gain a small piece of the future.

Harry C. Hoyle

The sea is a great teacher: it will find you out if you haven't done your homework and punish you with a punishment that exactly fits the "crime." It rewards the simple virtues of prudence, industry and forethought. You may be able to fool it for a little while, but in the long run it will let you know just what you are and will teach you humility and respect.

Life is composed of seemingly opposite forces, the physical and the spiritual. A man's happiness depends upon his finding a balance between the two. Experience in Nature, I believe, is the best medium for this reconciliation.

Michael Sipso

Whenever one man gets something without earning it, some other man has to earn something without getting it. That is morally wrong and any institution built on that philosophy is headed for trouble because the real irony of this is that the man who pays nothing actually pays the highest price of all through the destruction of his character and self-respect.

Edel sei der Mensch,

"Das Gottliche"

Jemster W. Sackert

Never take thyself too seriously, especially when confronted with the task of encapsulating one's "attitude toward life."

R. H. Sukin

The aim of education is to teach us how to think, not what to think. Thus instruction may end in the classroom, but education ends only with life. Since whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well, let's start it all with a smile, the curve that can set a lot of these things straight. Remember, if we try, the least we can be is wrong. It is our responsibility to make the effort.

Robert V. Sweeney

"Life is too short to waste

"Progress is made through effort and care."

"The present moment is

both our past and our future."

"Gather ye rosebuds while ye may."
Ronsard and Herrick

"Id dout cultiver notre jardin."
Voltaire

Joseph C. Tardif

A student must learn: 1) to think — based on understanding rather than memory; 2) to work — control his mind rather than his mind controlling him.

Frederick B. Tuttle

B. J. Hunter

As far as school is concerned, I believe that schools have one mission only, i.e. to teach. When they do not pursue that mission, they forfeit their right to existence, vide the exodus from the universities. As far as life in general is concerned, I rate honesty and consideration for others highest.

Education means the development of socially-acceptable moral, intellectual, and physical attributes. A good school is therefore an institution which enables and, if necessary, forces, a student to develop his academic and physical abilities to a maximum within the framework of acceptable moral standards. In particular, it is essential that schools teach students what adulthood is about rather than become side-tracked analyzing what adolescence is about. There is no place for indolence or immorality.

B. J. Hunter

I cannot say that I live by one philosophy alone. Our attitudes and values change as we mature and also change with the times.

Life is an interaction between people. There is no room for selfishness. We are here not for ourselves, but for each other: to learn from each other, to share our experiences, emotions and accomplishments. If we are too content, then we become lazy and useless. We need to be hungry — always a little starved to stimulate creativity, motivation, and involvement. Life is very short. Each year goes by faster than the year before, so there is no time to waste. He who sits back and watches the world go by will more than likely miss it, but he who gets himself involved will see it all and more.

"If" by Rudyard Kipling and a piece called "Desiderta" found in St. Paul's Church, Baltimore in the seventeenth century exemplify my feelings toward life. Have a purpose in life, get involved, and strive to be happy.

G. Wiley Wakeman

"Far better it is to have done mighty things, to win glorious triumphs, even though checkered by failures, than to rank with those poor souls who neither enjoy much nor suffer much because they live in the gray zone that knows neither victory nor defeat."

Theodore Roosevelt

J. Timothy Walsh

"All things must pass."

R. C. White, Sr.

I believe the great values that condition our lives and make them worth living are Goodness, Beauty, and Truth. If in western society we are experiencing an ethical deterioration, I feel that educators can, and must, strive to oppose it.

Katharine Wickenden

My philosophy is to get the most amount of work done, in the least amount of time, in the most perfect manner possible, with the least amount of bullshit!

Donald B. King

In general

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Matthew

On philosophy

"The wisdom of this world is foolishness before God."

Corinthians

On freedom

"Give me liberty or give me death."

P. Henry

On discipline

"Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul."

Proverbs

On discipline

"He who spares the rod hates his son, but he who loves him disciplines him diligently."

Proverbs

On morals and education

"Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child . . . Train up a child in the way he should go, even when he is old he will not depart from it."

Proverbs

On cheating

"Bread obtained by falsehood is sweet to a man, but afterward his mouth will be filled with gravel."

Proverbs

On art

"Art is a mirror of its age . . . each age gets the art it deserves."

Professor Rice

On work

"If any would not work, neither should he eat."

Before Tabor hired a new carpenter, Conrad Roy, the Work Crew was primarily concerned with odd jobs around the campus such as clearing brush on the south side of Lillard Hall and around the Maintenance and Alumni buildings; removing debris from Lillard's attic storage spaces; and generally preparing Lillard for the renovation scheduled to begin at the close of school.

As respect for the Work Crew's ability and enthusiasm increased, more demanding projects were entrusted the students, perhaps the most involved of these being the complete engine overhaul of the truck assigned the Work Crew, an undertaking which kept the vehicle operative and saved the Academy an estimated $5,000.

The Work Crew assembled and placed the Danish furniture in the new dormitory on Spring Street, as well as storing or redistributing the furniture cluttering the recently vacated triple rooms in Lillard Hall. The time-consuming spring task of removing and storing each dormitory's storm windows was entirely managed by the Work Crew. Additionally, all new lockers on campus were installed by students.

Several students proved themselves adept at basic carpentry, painting, welding, etc. and were consequently assigned to projects demanding these skills. Students stripped the walls of two dormitory rooms in need of repair, insulated them, and installed new wall coverings. Students also constructed trash bins, a keyboard for the Maintenance Office, and several calendar boards. Members of the Work Crew assisted in the construction of the Otis Building (a storage building located on Spring Street) Addition.

On a more individual level, Blondie Henderson did architectural and construction drawings for the renovation of Lillard Hall; Nick Greenfield did a complete survey of door hardware and locks, as well as a survey of all utilities and their relative location to Tabor buildings; Billy Bardelmeier painted the interior of the observatory; several other members of the Work Crew painted the electrical room of the Academic Center; and David Pierce did a considerable amount of stripping, cleaning, and painting of walls and stairways in Lillard.

This new area of student responsibility has proven uncontestedly successful as an outlet for student ingenuity and resourcefulness, as well as a tremendous aid to the maintenance of Tabor Academy.

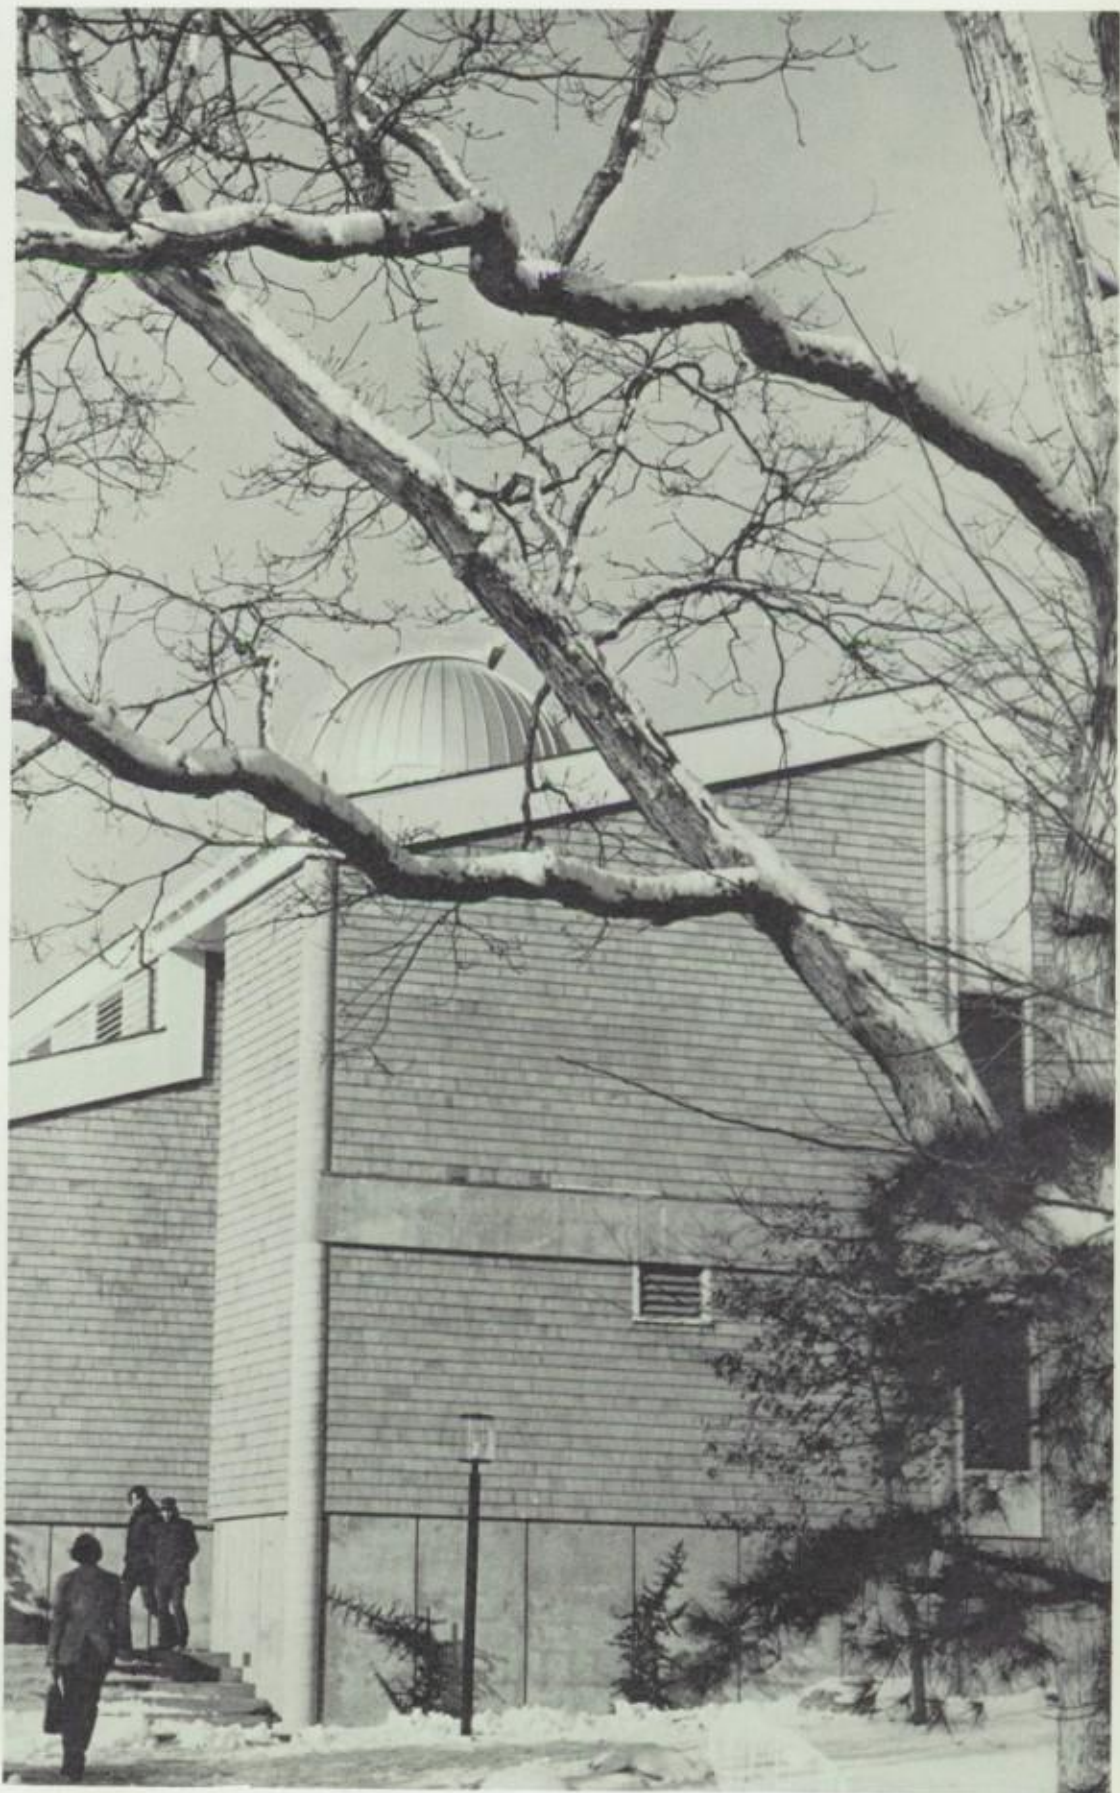

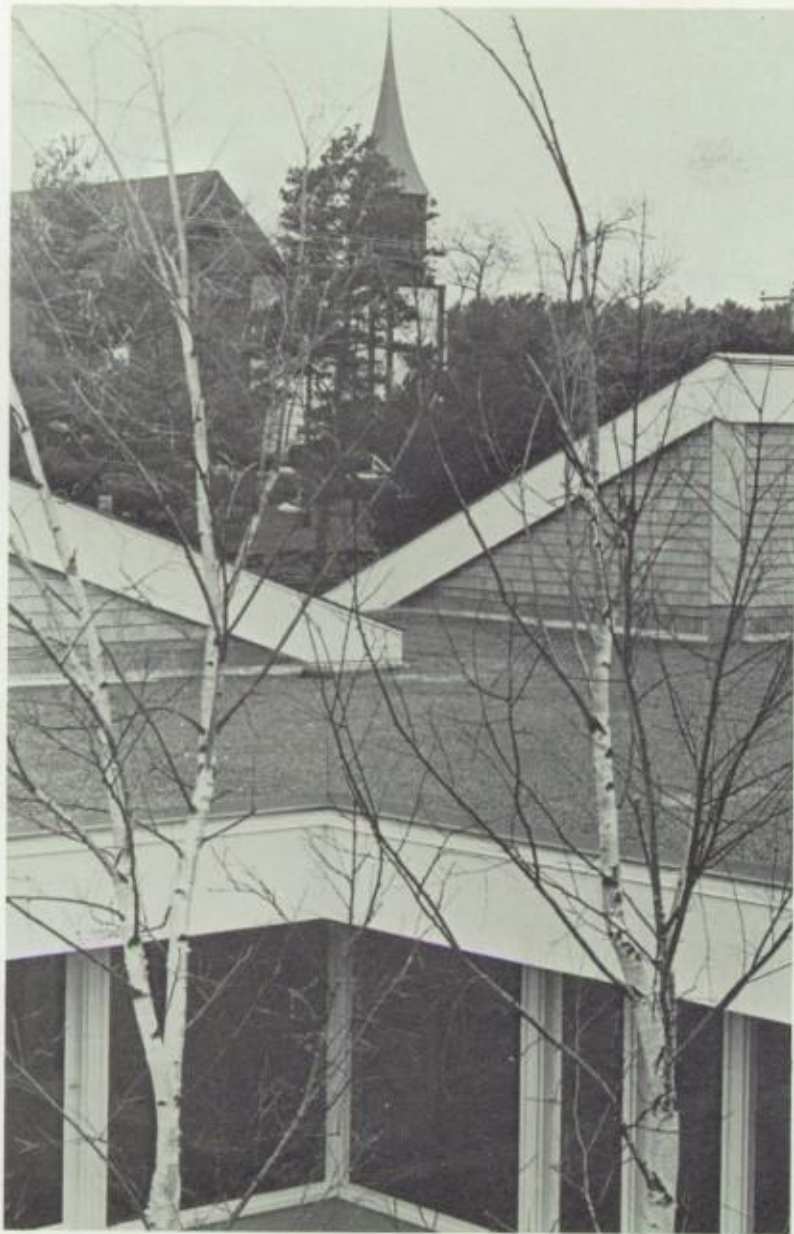

"On the whole the students have been learning skills that may in later life come handy, and at the same time have done a massive job in helping the Maintenance Department of Tabor Academy."

THE CLASS OF 1975

With a flaring crack of trumpets the feast
Began, trumpets all hung with bright banners,
And drums beat, and glorious bagpipes
Rumbled and shrilled their quick-step tunes,
And hearts beat quick with the music. At the signal
Rare and delicate dishes were served,
And venison in great slabs, and so many platters
That there was almost no place to set them in front of
The guests, broths and stews in overglowing Abundance.

All ate as they pleased
And as much as they wanted
A dozen dishes apiece,
And beer and wine flowed free.

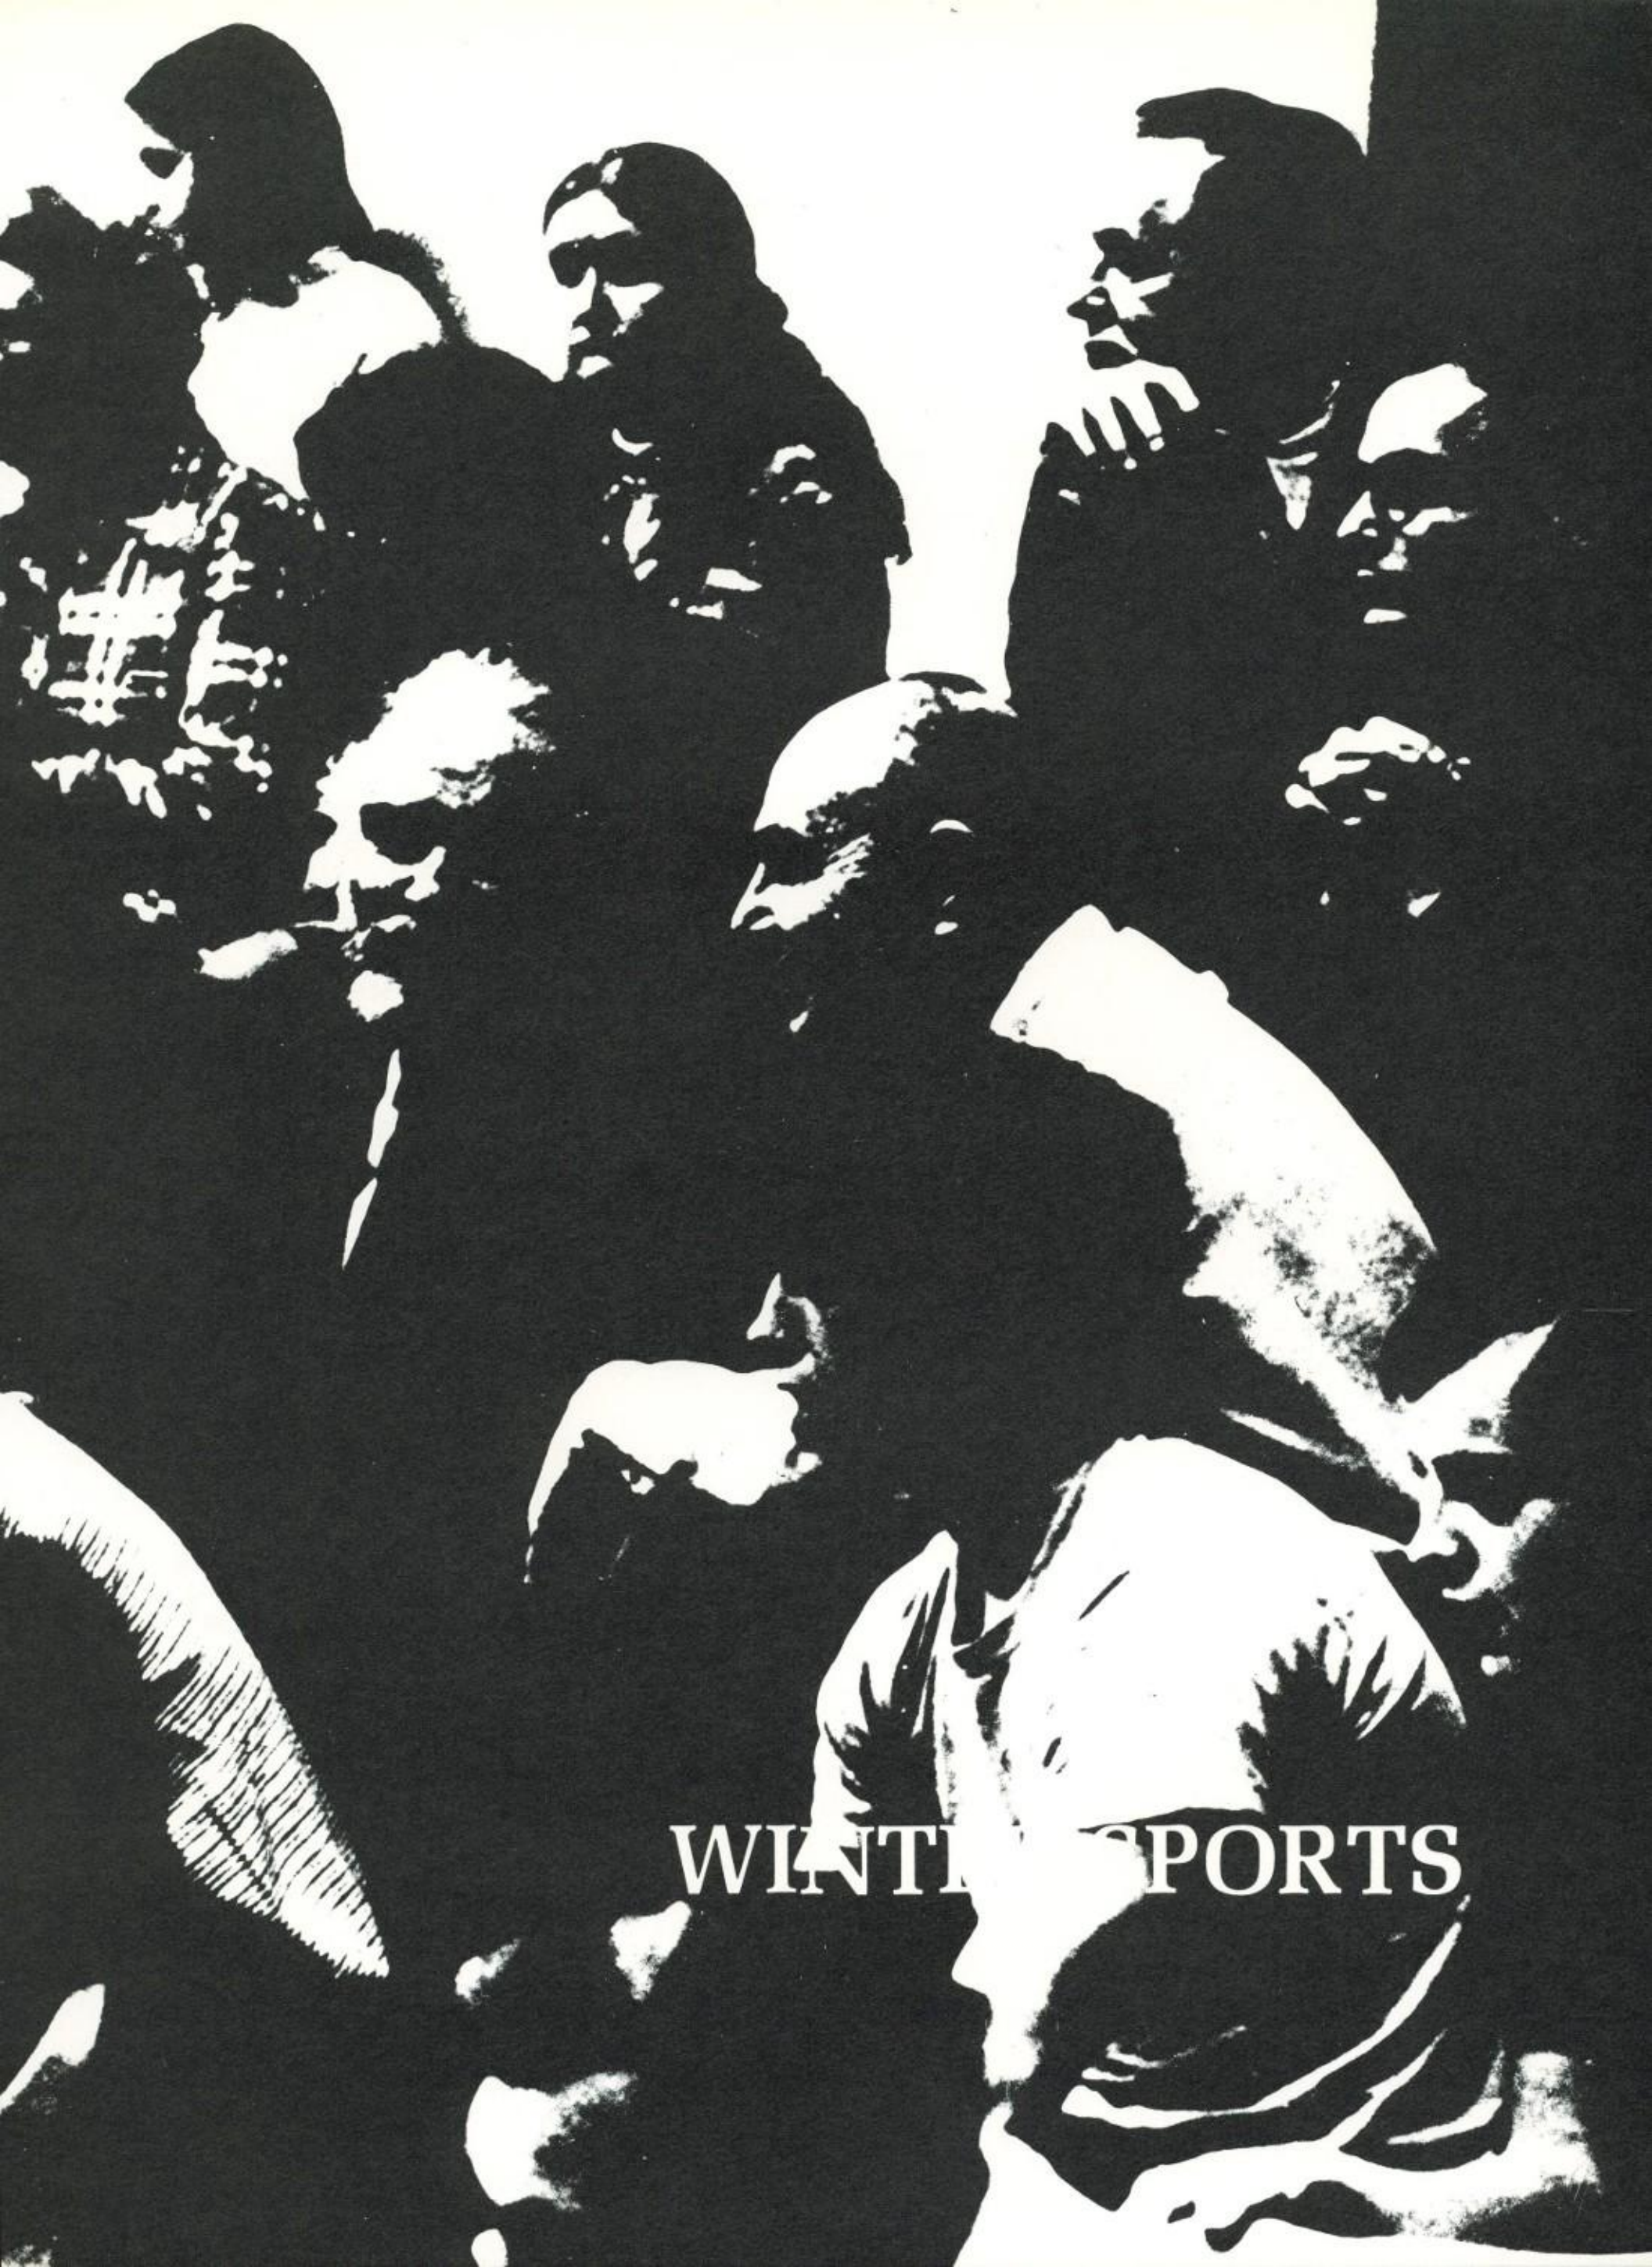

Winter is icumen in,
 Lhude sing Goddamm,
 Raineth drop and staineth slop,
 And how the wind doth ramm!
 Sing: Goddamm!

Astronomy Looks To The Stars

Tabor Academy, blessed with a fine school building, now has another thing to be thankful for. Tabor has just received a 14" Schmidt Cassegrain Telescope and the telescope and observatory program seems to be coming right along. The permanent base has arrived, as has the tracking equipment and the instrument seems now to be working very well.

Mr. Donald Wing has entered Tabor in a special program for November, December, and January in which Tabor will observe the Comet Kohoutek. There is a coordinating observatory program and that is headed by Dr. Robert Doyle at Harvard University.

of the Skylab Crew. It is hoped that Tabor's observations as well as others might be a substantial aid to astronomers who are working on the Comet. Tabor is definitely an integral part of the operation. Two boys are heading up the project and they are Peter Kyle and Henderson. Both of these boys are advanced Geology students.

Football Finishes With Success!

It seems rather disappointing that the football season has already come and gone, and that the members of the 1973 team are already involved in other sports. But for a minute I would like to go back on this very successful season and describe some of the highlights.

We opened our season against Mt. Hermon on Sept. 29 with a very strong and determined team. At first both offense and defense were having considerable trouble working against the "Hermies". But while things started win. From the fall season for the "Tabor Boy" and her crew has come to an end. The schooner spent the season sailing anywhere from Provincetown to Newport, R.I., including several sails to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. The "Tabor Boy" took a Saturday sail with a number of girls from St. Margaret's school.

Quie's Heroes...

This year's Varsity "B" soccer team was probably the best in the school's history. It had a fine record of 10 wins, 1 loss, and 1 tie. The loss was suffered against a strong Beaver Day team by a score of 4-0. Wins came against teams from South Abbey, Providence Day, Lawrence High School, George's. The season's only tie was a 1-1 battle with New Bedford.

AN INTERVIEW WITH RALPH K. SHORE

Marion Police Chief Comments On Town-Tabor

THE FOLLOWING IS THE EDITED TRANSCRIPT OF AN INTERVIEW WITH CHIEF RALPH SHORE OF THE MARION P.D., NOVEMBER 1, AT MARION POLICE STATION

LOG: What is the complete function of the police in Marion?
SHORE: Any police department's primary function is for a police service and for emergencies; we're different. If we get a call, we go to it. Quite frequently the police-

SHORE: Well, I think the "Fish" Club is one of the greatest organizations and I get a great deal of satisfaction out of having contact with kids who go out into the community and do some of the things that FISH does, and I just can't say enough good things about the program.
LOG: Do the police take responsibility towards the school rules, such as hitchhiking?
SHORE: Right now, I don't know

LOG: This is a general question of interest. How many policemen are there and how many officers are there?
SHORE: We have two cruisers and an ambulance and my personal car which I have always used as a cruiser. We have eight regular policemen and about twenty-three specials.
LOG: What are these twenty-three specials?

LOG: What is the biggest concern of the police department?
SHORE: Destruction of property, vandalism; and, as far as the students are concerned, one of the biggest beefs from the townspeople is walking in the road and failure to use the sidewalks. In my opinion this is a total disregard for other people. This is lack of consideration and if an elderly person who might have a history of heart trouble comes LOG: Do you have any general comments or ideas to make Tabor-Town relationships better?

Q.E.D.

Moderately sane yearbook staffs are more often than not characterized by a) varsity letters, b) a healthy respect for suggested deadlines, c) feigned iconoclasm, d) an obsessive sense of nostalgia, and e) stunningly beautiful girls of mediocre intellect. To what category this description of the popularly conceived "ideal" relegates the 1974 Fore 'n' Aft staff we have no idea.

Perhaps the best measure of our staff may have been in its reaction to the accelerating onslaught of deadlines as the year progressed. The cavalier dismissal of danger displayed by our incipient staff in the last week of our junior year gave way to the nail-biting and other manifestations of assorted neuroses which commenced to afflict our fledgling band the following September. Yet, with a keen sense of self-determinism, we proceeded to erect an impossibly unwieldy bureaucracy whose epic deterioration will one day form the central case study of the editor's projected work Psychoanalytical Therapy as Treatment for the Absence of Homeostasis among the Members of the Staff of an Annual Publication.

Alas, such a high level of organization availed us not, for we were confronted with the age-old problem of possessing too many rajahs without inspiring enough dervishes.

Despite the limited productivity of our staff during the first half of the year, unlimited discussion, experimentation, and assimilation of materials prepared us for our first submission to the publisher. The proofs of this initial step-in-the-right-direction, a major portion of our book, spurred us on to the devastating (in terms of human life) 12 a.m. to 3 a.m. working hours which became our regular routine soon after Commencement. (Certain unreliable sources will blithely offer their unsolicited testimony to our almost nightly attendance at the Nickelodean Cinema. This is by no means true, however, for we missed two consecutive showings of Belle du Jour occurring in early June.)

Nevertheless, there were times which found our morale not merely at its lowest ebb, but on the verge of evaporation.

And just as far as ever from the end!

Naught in the distance but the evening, naught

To point my footsteps further!

Yet, we persevered owing to the varying ascendencies of our several stars.

Rick Porteus, as editor in chief, proved to be possessed of a remarkable tragic instinct which served to heighten the drama of production or lack thereof. Immediately recognized as an inimitable procrastinator, utter necessity often cajoled him into fantastic solo efforts. His martyrdom and canonization were a natural consequence of several frustrated vacations spent in pursuance of his destiny as editor.

Matt Blake, in his role of business manager, merged electronic sophistication with healthy distraction through the instrument of his pocket calculator, diagramming, speculating, and even raising much of our revenue. He also created and was first to serve in the capacity of "exterior conscience" to the editor.

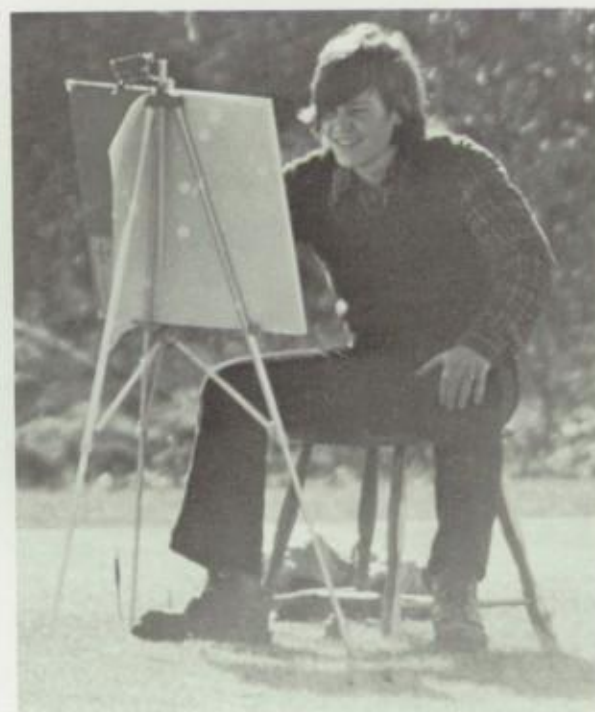

Erik Steele, indefatigable campus photographer, served admirably as the eyes of this year's staff, capturing Tabor in close to three thousand ( $3 \times 10^3$ ) characteristic and sometimes compromising poses. He literally carpeted the editors' inner sanctum with photographs, often mass-produced in marathon printing efforts that extended throughout the night. His abundant offerings enabled us to attain that degree of quality to which we aspired.

Mark Truran, associate editor, and one of the last members of the staff to lay down the colors and return to civilian life, provided steady assurance that the sun would never set on an unfinished Tabor yearbook. Working in many capacities, Mark did what most urgently needed doing, accomplishing everything with consummate skill.

Tom Crowley, associate editor, joined the staff in early spring. Although his picture unfortunately was not available for inclusion in these four pages, he was a force to be reckoned with on the yearbook staff until his impressment in mid-July. He succeeded in regrouping our routed combatants and marshalling our disjointed financial empire; two tasks which never ceased to demand the utmost of attention.

John Austin and Leslie Quinn, production assistants, amassed much of the bulk of information found on these pages. They were imaginative and reliable and therefore to be praised.

We triumphed over the sinister spectre of haunting deadlines, the chimera of missing photographs, and the ever-present desire to retreat into the bowels of the earth; we worked till the task was behind us.

A BRIEF NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

As I sit here at the editor's desk waiting for the office refrigerator to defrost, my mind is gradually absorbing the notion that my responsibilities as editor are very nearly over. Yesterday, I wouldn't have believed such utter nonsense.

Burningly it came on me all at once.

This was the place! those two hills on the right,
Crouched like two bulls locked horn in horn in fight;
While to the left, a tall scalped mountain . . . Dunce,
Dotard, a-doing at the very nonce,
After a life spent training for the sight!

Yet, over it is, and naught remains for me to do but offer my personal thanks to Mark Truran who, in an excellent and justifiable position to balk and criticize a somewhat vague editor in chief, did his best to hurry this volume to the presses, all the while remaining a loyal friend.

*Dauntless the slug-horn to my lips I set, and blew.

Rohmer in the Afternoon

By Fred Barron

Jean Marie Maurice Scherer is a soft-spoken, apparently shy man of 52. It has been said that he occasionally disguises himself in a false moustache, that he rarely allows himself to be photographed, and that he never grants interviews. He has written one novel, Les Vacances under the pseudonym Gilbert Cordier, and has made six films under the equally fictitious name of Eric Rohmer.

Considering this hermetic image ("I never go out," he says with a defensive pride, "I detest publicity.") it was not at all surprising that Rohmer's arrival in Boston was virtually unannounced. A handful of mimeographed flyers tacked up around Harvard Square, a few low-keyed phone calls to the press from Harvard's West European Studies Department, under whose auspices they are continuing. Such is Rohmer's to lead a secluded on a career which public eye. His in their lives according plan, yet they all situations which v expectations. Roh reclusive, Frederic monogamous po characters set out frustrate themse with a facility for enough charm to hypocritical.

Rohmer talks freely when questioned about the minor points of his films. Almighty Zeus, what a monster!

What is it like?

Horrible. Keeps changing shape, too. First it's an ox,
Then it's a mule, and now
it's the prettiest girl.

Girl? Where? Lead me to her!

Now it's turned into a mastiff.

It's the Dino!

BARMAID: Platháne, there he is! Remember him?
It's the very same tramp that broke into our place
one day and ate up sixteen loaves of the best bread.

PLATHANE: By God so it is.

BARMAID: The very same!

XANTHIAS: This is going to be hard on somebody.

BARMAID: And twenty roasts or so.

XANTHIAS: Somebody's in for it!

BARMAID: And the dear knows how many pounds of garlic.
Madam,
you're mad. Do you know what you're saying?

BARMAID: You!
D'you think I don't know you, never mind them
fancy clothes? —And I forgot the marinated smelts!

PLATHANE: Yes, and the cheese.
He swallows it whole, rind, basket, and all, and when I give him the bill,
he belches at me.

XANTHIAS: That's what he always does.

PLATHANE: And he hauls out his sword, like he's crazy-like—

BARMAID: Yes, dearie, you poor thing!

PLATHANE: And scares us to death and chases us upstairs,
and then walks off with the table-cloth.

XANTHIAS: Of course.

PLATHANE: We ought to do something!

BARMAID: Go get Mr. Stokes.

XANTHIAS: Or Mr. Gowing, if you can find him.

EURIPIDES: Skill in speech is Persuasion's inner shrine.
 AISCHYLOS: Death is the sole god who cannot be bought.
 DIONYSOS: Cuckoo!
 EURIPIDES: I don't understand. What happened that time?
 DIONYSOS: He threw in Death, the heaviest of evils.
 EURIPIDES: I threw in Persuasion, and made an adorable verse.
 DIONYSOS: Persuasion's a tricky, bodiless affair.
 Come, look through your plays:
 You must find something solid.

PLUTO: And so, Aischylos,
 fare well!
 Go back and save our City with your wise art.
 Restore our men—
 there are many
 —to their senses.

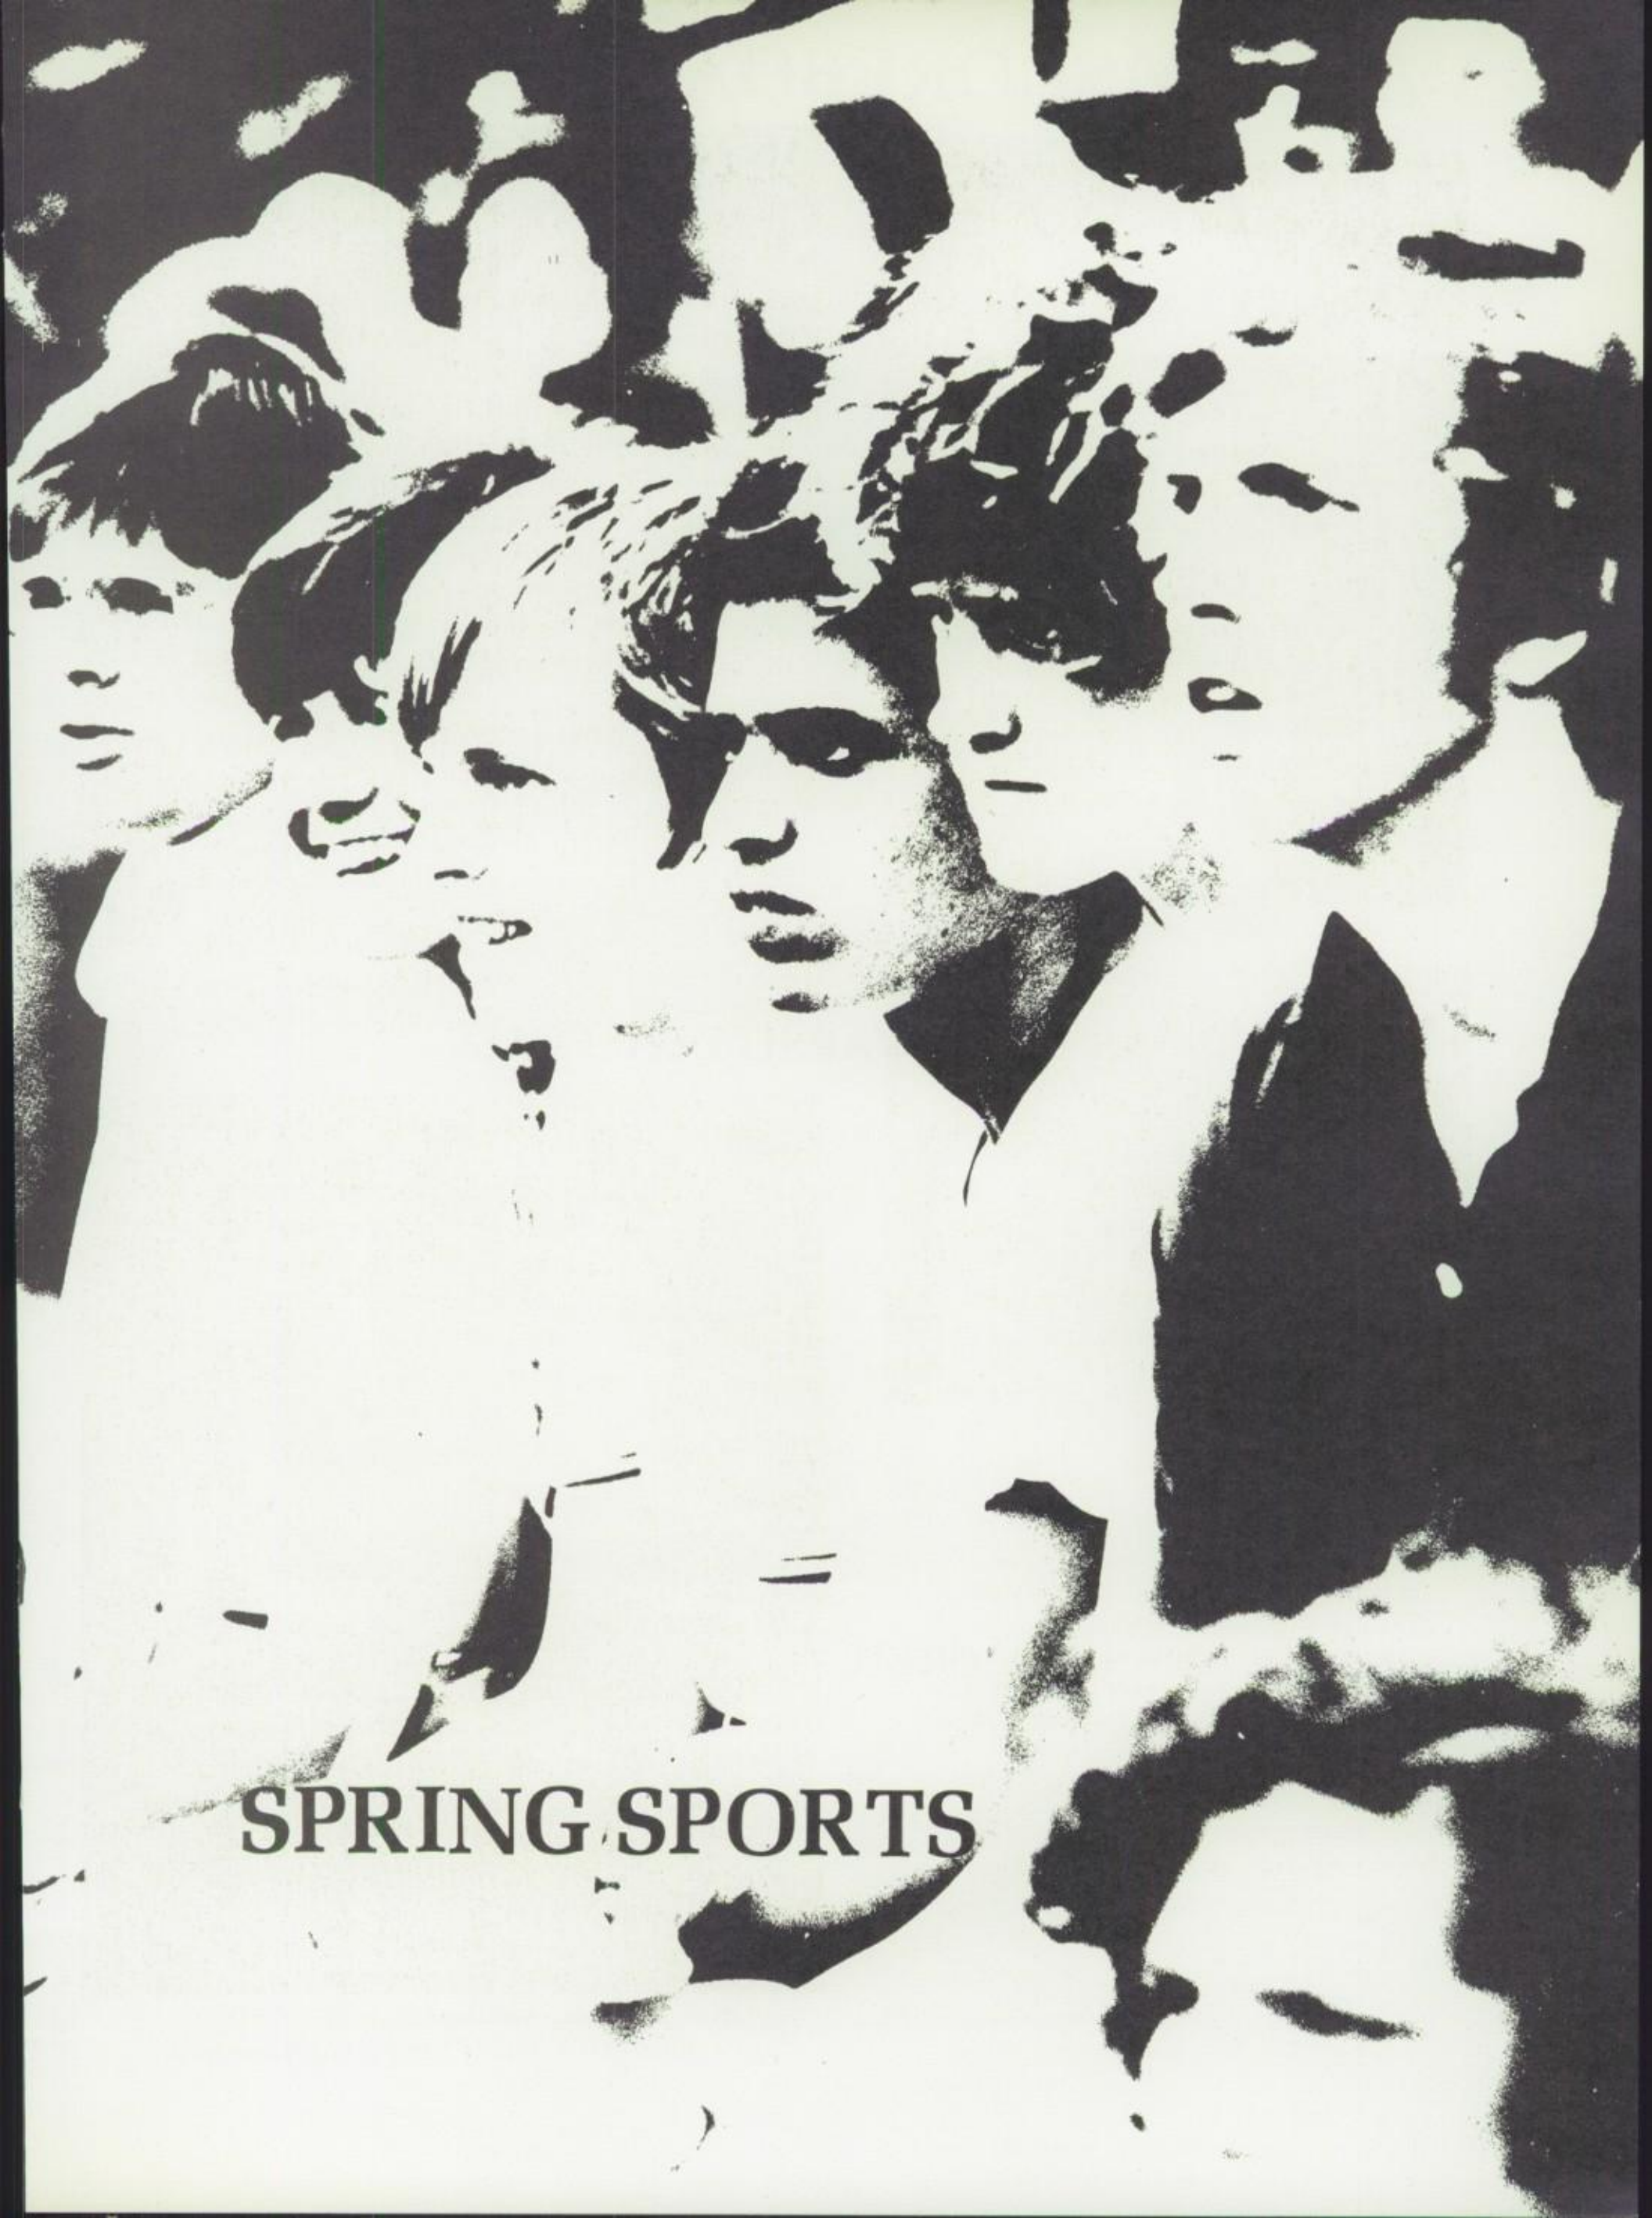

For winter's rains and ruins are over,
 And all the season of snows and sins;
 The days dividing lover and lover,
 The light that loses, the night that wins;
 And time remembered is grief forgotten,
 And frosts are slain and flowers begotten,
 And in green underwood and cover
 Blossom by blossom the spring begins.

Algernon Charles Swinburne
 Chorus from Atalanta in Calydon

If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is for ever Tabor.

Let the boy try along this bayonet-blade
How cold steel is, and keen with hunger of blood;
Blue with all malice, like a madman's flash;
And thinly drawn with famishing for flesh.

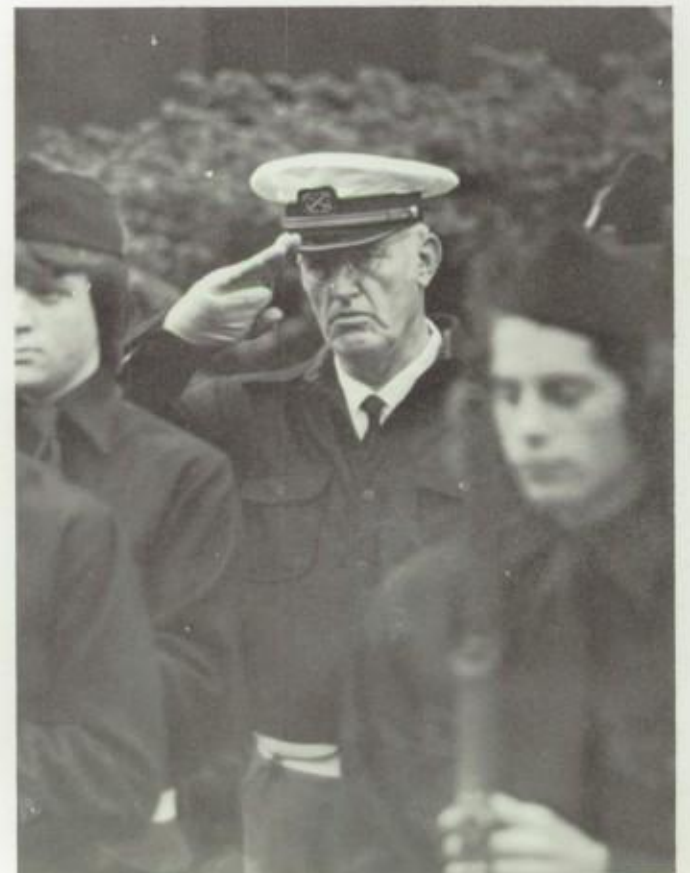

Lend him to stroke these blind, blunt bullet-leads
Which long to nuzzle in the hearts of lads,
Or give him cartridges of fine zinc teeth,
Sharp with the sharpness of grief and death.

For his own teeth seem for laughing round an apple.
There lurk no claws behind his fingers supple;
And God will grow no talons at his heels,
Nor Antlers through the thickness of his curls.

Wilfred Owen
"Arms and the Boy"

Pallas Athene now inspired Diomedes son of Tydeus with audacity and resolution, so that he might eclipse all his comrades-in-arms and cover himself with glory. She made his shield and helmet glow with a blaze as steady as the Star of Summer when he rises from his bath in Ocean to outshine all other stars. Such was the fire that she caused to stream from his head and shoulders as she thrust him into the very heart of the battle.

The Alumni Banquet Address was delivered by Mr. D. Allan Bromley, a Henry Ford II Professor of Physics and Chairman of the Physics Department of Yale University. The subject of his address was energy and its future sources.

The Commencement Address was delivered by Mr. James Calvert, General Manager of the Public Relations and Personnel Department for Texaco Inc. and a retired Vice Admiral and former Superintendent of the United States Naval Academy. The subject of his address was perspective and mankind's proper self-image.

MATRICULATION

He was sent, as usual, to a public school, where a little learning was painfully beaten into him, and from thence to the university, where it was carefully taken out of him.

E.S.U. EXCHANGE STUDENT

IAN GRAHAM LAW JOHNSON
"Ian"

16 MONTFORT GARDENS, HAINAULT
GARDENS, ILFORD, ESSEX, ENGLAND

During my year at Tabor I have been affected in a number of ways, the extent of which I could really never have anticipated. I came to America wildly curious, concerned with my future and how it would relate with my past. I was sad, I was excited — in a strange giant land where I knew not one of the 200 million people that live and work here.

My first few weeks, of course, were the hardest. Cautiously I approached students and tried to make friends. Tabor looked after me but I needed security of friendship. I hated all but a few of them and didn't like these much either. And I hadn't found what I wanted. I went home for Christmas.

Round one at Tabor, the first three months, saw me demoralized and disillusioned. A series of events at home effected my late return, but now I was happy, rearmed with some of that enthusiasm that took me to America in the first place. The winter term slipped by. And then I took to the road. In a blaze of inspiration I planned a bus route, left school ten days early — for which I shall be eternally grateful to the headmaster — and disappeared into the great American wilderness. A month of rolling miles. I went incomprehensibly mad. I took photographs of words like "Bank of Georgia" — even license plates from South Carolina when nothing else would do. I talked in Southern dialect. Home was the local bus station.

Having now penetrated and seen America, I returned happily to Tabor. My friends were pleased to see me. I had more in common with them now. I was relaxed and satisfied with my sense of achievement.

I realized not only had I done the right thing in deciding to come here but that I had experienced so much beyond what I expected. Early on I felt the strain of such an exhaustive test of my character, but the strain disappeared as I understood more about everyone and learned how to relate with them.

I thank Mr. Wickenden and all who made my brief stay at Tabor possible. When you get down to it, in spite of everything that is said about the place during the year, we had a good time.

ROYAL THAI SCHOLAR

LERSON TANASUGARN
"Lerson" "Odd"

c/o ROYAL THAI EMBASSY, THAI STUDENT ADVISER, STUDENT'S DEPARTMENT, 1906-23rd STREET, N.W. WASHINGTON, D.C.

Before I came to Tabor I knew very little about it. A Thai Tabor alumnus had recommended Tabor to me as an academically strong school. In Bangkok I looked up in a prep school guide and found that Tabor was famous for its waterfront programs, especially crew. In Washington, D.C. I had a chance to see an old Tabor catalogue which I knew later had been published some decades ago. The pictures showed many old buildings and many sport activities and the students' crew cut hair style. So I expected to find a school with rigorous academic and sport curricula, old buildings and strict rules that would eventually transform the students into sailors.

I have been very much impressed since my first minute at Tabor. The school didn't look old at all. Most buildings such as the Academic Center, the Art Building, the Library, the Wickenden Chapel, the Stone Gymnasium, etc. — or even the sewage plant — were very new and furnished with modern equipment, some of which I had not seen before. I was proud of the modern language, physics, chemistry, biology and computer laboratories as well as the observatory on top of the school building with a fourteen-inch Schmidt Cassegrain telescope. The academic subjects here were not extremely hard compared with those in some foreign countries, but I had heard that Tabor's courses are among the toughest and highest standard ones in the United States. The sport programs were very great. We had many choices, including many waterfront sports such as sailing, crew and cruising on the Tabor Boy. The hair style was not crew cut any more, we were given more freedom. I joined the Tabor Glee Club which is a most excellent singing group among high schools in New England.

The food was good (for me) — as someone said, "We are here to enjoy Tabor's food!" It's really delicious, and we could (sometimes) get as much as we wanted.

The thing that impressed me most is the life at Tabor, a family school. Here we had "Mom," or Mrs. Wickenden, and "Dad," or the headmaster. Both of them as well as all teachers were very kind to the students. After talking with my friends who went to Deerfield, Choate and Phillips Andover, I am now convinced that Tabor faculty and students have the closest and best relationship.

To sum up, though I did not have a very good expectation before I came to Tabor, I am now glad I came here.

*All nature is but art, unknown to thee;
All chance, direction which thou canst not see;
All discord, harmony not understood;
All partial evil, universal good:
And, spite of pride, in erring reason's spite,
One truth is clear, whatever is, is right.*

is a name well known in printing since 1867. The important documents composed and printed by this firm traces a history enjoyed by very few other companies in the world. Agreements, Mergers, Proxy Statements and Registration Statements which it has produced could form the basis for a tome on the development of American business and the free enterprise system itself since our nation's Indian wars. If you require a closely supervised printing service, whether your concern is stockholder relations material, public financing, corporate court battles or any printing where speed, accuracy and experience is required, call (212) 944-9222 or visit the plant at 110 Greenwich Street, New York, N. ## JIM GOWING

HOME: Tabor Academy, Marion, Massachusetts

AGE: 57

PROFESSION: Titular head of all academia at small, sequestered, all-male, boarding school.

HOBBIES: Guidance Counseling, James Joyce.

LAST BOOK READ: Teaching as a Subversive Activity

LAST ACCOMPLISHMENT: Successfully championed Ouija board as potential aid to Secondary School Guidance Counselors.

QUOTE: "Yes, I know that's too bad. So?"

PROFILE: Proud. Courageous. Committed. Speaks out firmly and often for preservation of antediluvian traditions.

SCOTCH: Dewar's "White Label"

Authentic. There are more than a thousand ways to blend whiskies in Scotland, but few are authentic enough for Dewar's "White Label." The quality standards we set down in 1846 have never varied. Into each drop go only the finest whiskies from the Highlands, the Lowlands, the Hebrides.

Dewar's never varies.
